Subject: Bear hunt

Suzanne: I would appreciate your sending this to the Wildlife Commissioners before their meeting this weekend. Thanks so much. Marge Sill

Bear hunting in Nevada would be an unfortunate decision. The best way to keep bears from intruding on private property is to make sure that all garbage and food is stored in bear-proof containers. This has been demonstrated for years in Yosemite National Park and other places in the Sierra where there are many black bears. Sending hunters with dogs out into areas such as Incline Village would be dangerous to inhabitants and tourists alike. Most residents totally oppose this proposal.
